Raising Helen. (2004). Color. 119 mins. CC PG13. Theatrical Release. Video Released 2004. Directed by Garry Marshall. Featuring Kate Hudson, Joan Cusack, Hector Elizondo, John Corbett, Abigail Breslin. Raising Helen revolves around Helen Harris (Kate Hudson), whose successful fashion career and decadent Manhattan lifestyle are plenty in terms of keeping her occupied and content. Helen's days as a socialite are brought to a swift end, however, when she is informed not only of the death of her sister and brother-in-law, but of the decision to leave their three children in her care. Being one of New York's hippest matters little to 15-year-old Audrey (Hayden Panettiere), ten-year-old Kenny (Spencer Breslin), and five-year-old Sarah (Abigail Breslin), who would much rather have their parents back. Convinced she can raise the kids and maintain her already fast-paced schedule, Helen quickly finds herself burnt out and disheartened by her older sister's (Joan Cusack) lack of faith. Despite her already hectic schedule, however, Helen finds the time to develop a genuine affection for her new dependents, as well as an equally genuine attraction to Dan Parker (John Corbett), the kids' school principal and local pastor. Eventually, Helen realizes she can't balance the two lives, and is faced with a difficult decision: Does she live her old dreams or take a chance on a new one?. Buena Vista Home Video. DVD. $29.99; VHS. $24.99.

Featuring Milla Jovovich, Sienna Guillory, Thomas Kretschmann, Oded Fehr, Mike Epps. One of the only survivors of a man-made plague joins forces with a team of private warriors in a bid to save what's left of the Earth in this sequel to Resident Evil, the big-screen adaptation of the popular video game. Picking up where the first film left off, Resident Evil: Apocalypse finds Alice (Milla Jovovich) still battling the living dead who are overtaking Raccoon City. She was immune to the contagion by treatments she unwittingly received from the nefarious and all-powerful Umbrella Corporation. Alice encounters Jill Valentine (Sienna Guillory), a former member of Umbrella's internal defense team who shares Alice's immunity to the zombie virus. Forming an uneasy alliance with Jill's one-time leader Carlos Oliveira (Oded Fehr) and his cohorts, this tiny band of survivors seeks out Dr. Charles Ashford (Jared Harris), Umbrella's top scientist and one of the only men with the know-how to find a solution to the zombie menace; however, they discover Ashford's cooperation comes with a price — the scientist's daughter Angie (Sophie Vavasseur) is missing, and he'll help Alice and her partners only if Angie is returned to him safe and sound. Resistencia: Hip Hop in Columbia. Video Released 2002. This video offers an unusual look at the current political and economic crisis in Colombia¿including a decades-long civil war, a rampant drug trade, kidnapping for ransom, and financial scandal at the highest levels of the government¿through the eyes of young Colombians, in particular the country¿s finest rap musicians, DJs and breakdancers. These young artist-activists turn out to be surprisingly articulate in their analysis of the nation¿s deteriorating situation and its role within a global economic system dominated by the U.S. They also provide rare insights into life in the poor barrios of this volatile country and how traditional Latin music has been surpassed in popularity by rap music. Resistencia is thus not only youthful and entertaining, it is also angry and enlightening. Cinema Guild, The. VHS. $275.00.

Returner. (2002). Color. 118 mins. CC R. (Subtitled: English). Video Released 2002. Directed by Takashi Yamazaki. Featuring Takeshi Kaneshiro, Goro Kishitani, Kirin Kiki, Anne Suzuki. In the year 2084, when humanity is decimated by a ruthless alien force, all hope lies in Millie (Anne Suzuki), a hardened young soldier, as she goes back in time to stop the invasion before it's too late. Ending up in present-day 2002, she appears in the middle of a gunfight as Miyamoto (Takeshi Kaneshiro), a mysterious mercenary, is breaking up a child-slave ring headed by Mizoguchi (Goro Kishitani), a ruthless Triad member with an uncanny thirst for blood. With bullets flying left and right, Millie is shot by Miyamoto and is brought into his secretive ring of do-gooding with the smart-mouthed Kirin Kiki, an arms-dealing old woman that's helping Miyamoto on his quest for revenge against Mizoguchi. Through some coercing (by the form of a small, explosive device the size of a band-aid on his neck), Miyamoto unwillingly joins the mission, as they infiltrate the government base that holds a captured alien and its crashed spacecraft — the first contact that eventually brings on the invasion. With Mizoguchi and the Triads moving in, seeking some of the alien advanced weaponry, Miyamoto may finally get the vengeance he seeks as Millie gets closer and closer to saving the entire human race. Sony Pictures Home Entertainment. DVD. $26.96; VHS.

Riding Giants. Color. 101 mins. PG13. (Subtitled: French, English). Video Released 2005. Greg Noll, Laird Hamilton, Sean Penn, Dick Brewer, Sam George, Buzzy Kerbox. Directed by Stacy Peralta. From acclaimed director Stacy Peralta comes Riding

Giants, the story of big wave surfing. Breaking the mold of traditional documentary filmmaking, Riding Giants uses its dynamic, cross-generational approach to profile the lives and times of the intrepid surfers who over the decades have dedicated themselves to finding and successfully challenging the biggest waves on earth. We meet Greg Noll, the pioneer, whose relentless push into Hawaii's big surf in the late 1950s earned him the nickname "The Bull." There's Jeff Clark, Northern California's lone frontiersman, who, after discovering the massive waves of Mavericks near San Francisco, rode there alone for over a decade. And finally Hawaii's Laird Hamilton, the prototypical "extreme" surfer, a rare breed of athlete/innovator considered as the best big wave rider who ever waxed a board. Through a fast-paced combination of mediums that include classic archival photography, spectacular movie footage - both current and vintage - and contemporary interviews with the sport's greatest surfers, experts and storytellers, Riding Giants captures the rich visual history of one of the most dramatic athletic adventures of our time. Sony Pictures Home Entertainment. DVD. (ISBN: 978-1-4049-5975-0(0)) $24.96.

Ripley's Game. (2002). Color. 110 mins. CC R. Video Released 2002. Directed by Liliana Cavani. Featuring John Malkovich, Lena Headey, Ray Winstone, Dougray Scott. Living a life of luxury as an art dealer in northern Italy with his musician wife Luisa (Chiara Caselli), Ripley (John Malkovich) attends a party thrown by Jonathan Trevanny (Dougray Scott) and overhears the host making critical comments about Ripley's fashion sense. Enraged Ripley immediately plots his retaliation for this slight, which comes via a reunion with his former business partner Reeves (Ray Winstone). Reeves seeks out Ripley's help in finding an unrecognized assassin to kill a Russian gangster, and Ripley suggests he talk to Trevanny — whom Ripley knows has recently been diagnosed with leukemia and is also desperately strapped for cash. Trevanny reluctantly accepts the offer, in order to insure his family's security — but is pressured into a repeat performance, which draws the ire of Ripley. The situation quickly spirals out of control to the point of drawing the attention — and anger — of the Russian mob, forcing Ripley to intervene. But the master criminal also develops a respect for his unwitting victim, forming an unlikely friendship under the most dire of circumstances. New Line Home Video. VHS. $22.99.

The Rosa Parks Story. (2002). Color. 90 mins. CC NR. Made-for-TV. Video Released 2002. Angela Bassett, Cicely Tyson, Peter Francis James, Tonea Stewart, Dexter Scott King. Directed by Julie Dash. Even as a child, Rosa stands separate from her fellow African-Americans; instead of being shipped off to a shabby public school, she is enrolled in a private classroom run by Quakers, who encourage the girl to transcend the severe limitations of legalized segregation in her home state of Alabama. In her late teens, Rosa marries barber Raymond Parks, a politically savvy and outspoken proponent of equal rights for all. For many years suffering in silence as the iniquities of the South's Jim Crow laws consign her to second-class-citizen status, Rosa finally joins the local branch of the NAACP with the encouragement of her childhood friend Rebecca "Johnnie" Carr — much to the dismay of husband Raymond, who feels that the organization is ineffective in its ongoing battle against the white power structure. Rosa's personal struggle against institutionalized racism reaches its zenith on the night of December 1, 1955, when, bone-weary after a long day's work as a seamstress at a Montgomery department store, she refuses to give up her seat on a bus to a white man — and is promptly arrested. Thus are the wheels set in motion for the first major Civil Rights demonstration of the 1950s, with Rosa rising to heroic status in the eyes of her people, an event that also profoundly alters the life of local religious leader Martin Luther King Jr. Xenon Pictures, Inc. (Xenon Home Video). DVD. $19.98; VHS.

Rosenstrasse. (2003). Color. 136 mins. CC PG13. (German). Video Released 2003. Directed by Margarethe Von Trotta. Featuring Katja Riemann, Jutta Lampe, Martin Feifel. German filmmaker Margarethe von Trotta directs the war drama Rosenstrasse, based on the plight of "mixed marriages" between Jewish men and non-Jewish women during the Holocaust. In contemporary New York, Jewish matriarch Ruth (Jutta Lampe) practices Orthodox mourning traditions for her late husband, to the dismay of her daughter Hannah (Maria Schrader). At the wake, Ruth's cousin Rachel (Carola Regnier) tells Hannah some family secrets that send curious Hannah over to Berlin. She searches out 90-year-old Lena Fischer (Doris Schade), who cared for Ruth during WWII. Flashbacks recall the events of 1943,when Jewish husbands were rounded up and kept in a house on a street called Rosenstrasse. Lena (played by Katja Riemann as a young woman) joins a group of other wives for a week-long protest, where she meets an abandoned seven-year-old named Ruth. Sony Pictures Home Entertainment. Jackson, Guy Pearce, Bruce Greenwood, Blair Underwood, Philip Baker Hall, Anne Archer, Ben Kingsley. Directed by William Friedkin. Screenplay by Stephen Gaghan. Executive Producer James Webb. Focuses on the relationship between Marine colonels Hays Hodges & Terry Childers, who met in Vietnam when Childers saved the life of his badly wounded friend. After the war, the two go their separate ways & Colonel Childers becomes a Marine commander while Colonel Hodges pursues the field of military law. Thirty years later, their paths cross again when Childers becomes involved in a situation in Yemen & must plead for his old friend's assistance. Targeted as a scapegoat for the massacre of a supposedly unarmed crowd during an attack on the US embassy, Childers hopes that Hodges & his experience in military law will be able to help him out of this sticky situation. Ordered by the National Security Advisor, William Sokal, to appear at a court hearing, Childers must face the relentless prosecution of hotshot lawyer & Stanford graduate, Major Mark Biggs. And so begins the struggle between the rules of war & the moral issues that arise in the heat of combat. Paramount Pictures. VHS. (Order #: 332173); VHS, Special Edition. Run Silent, Run Deep. Based on a novel by Edward L. Beach, Jr. War (Feature Films). World War, 1939-1945. B&W. 94 mins. Video Released Jan. 1991. Clark Gable, Burt Lancaster, Jack Warden, Brad Dexter, Don Rickles. Commanding Officers: Clark Gable, Burt Lancaster. Clark Gable delivers a strong performance as a sub commander bent on avenging the loss of his previous boat in Japan's Bungo Straits, a "graveyard of submarines" off Tokyo Bay. Burt Lancaster is equally convincing as his tough executive officer who questions Gable's single-minded, almost suicidal obsession. Their duel of wits - even as they sweat out depth charges & fire from enemy destroyers & planes - fuels the film's fire as it rushes dead ahead to a rousing climax. MGM/UA Home Video. VHS. (ISBN: 978-0-7928-0508-3(9), Order #: M202133) $9.97.

Runaway Jury. (2003). Color. 127 mins. CC PG13. (Dubbed: French, Spanish. Subtitled: French, Spanish). Video Released 2003. Directed by Gary Fleder. Featuring John Cusack, Gene Hackman, Rachel Weisz, Orlando Jones, Dustin Hoffman. Three people attempt to bend justice for their own purposes in this drama based on the best-selling novel by John Grisham. After a man dies in a shooting incident, his wife files a lawsuit against the company that manufactured the gun, with her lawyer, Wendell Rohr (Dustin Hoffman), arguing that the firm in question knew the shop which sold the weapon was not following federal regulations pertaining to the sale of firearms. As the case goes to trial, the firearm manufacturer is taking no chances on the outcome of a potentially devastating case, and they hire as part of their legal team Rankin Fitch (Gene Hackman), a "jury consultant" who makes it his business to see that he knows enough about the jurors to be able to guarantee the result of the trial. Fitch and his team have learned incriminating secrets about nearly everyone hearing the evidence, but Fitch discovers two factors he wasn't counting upon — Nick Easter (John Cusack), the jury foreman who appears to have an agenda all his own, and Marlee (Rachel Weisz), a mysterious woman who has her own plans regarding bending the jury to her will. Bruce Davison, Jeremy Piven, and Bruce McGill round out the supporting cast. Incidentally, in John Grisham's original book, the case was filed against a cigarette manufacturer, but the producers opted to adjust the story after several real-life trials against tobacco companies. Twentieth Century Fox Entertainment. DVD. $27.98; VHS.; VHS.

Featuring Rock, Seann William Scott, Ewen Bremner, Christopher Walken, Rosario Dawson. Beck (The Rock) is a "retrieval specialist" in hock to a powerful and not particularly nice gentleman named Walker (William Lucking). Beck is anxious to retire from his dangerous work and open a small restaurant. Walker tells Beck he'll be free and clear with enough cash to fulfill his dream if he does one more job. He sends Beck into the Brazilian rainforest to bring back his wayward son, Travis (Seann William Scott). Travis is down there looking for a legendary idol, El Gato Diablo, which he could sell for millions if he found it. A pretty local, Mariana (Rosario Dawson), offers Travis the use of her boat in exchange for a cut of the take on the statue. But the powerful Hatcher (Christopher Walken) owns the area's huge mine, where locals work for slave wages, and feels that anything found in the area is his property. He refuses to let Beck take Travis back to the U.S. until the statue is in his hands. Using his estimable fighting prowess (he doesn't like guns), Beck manages to get Travis out of town, but Travis doesn't want to go home, and he ends up getting them stranded in the jungle, where they're confronted with horny monkeys and angry guerrillas. To make matters worse, Hatcher and his thugs are hot on their trail, and Mariana turns out to have her own motives for getting involved. Universal Studios Home Video, Inc. Saved! (2003). Color. 92 mins. CC PG13. Video Released 2004. Directed by Brian Dannelly. Featuring Mandy Moore, Jena Malone, Patrick Fugit, Macaulay Culkin. Mary (Jena Malone) is entering her senior year at American Eagle Christian High School. She seems to be in an ideal social position as one of the "Christian Jewels," the most devout and popular clique of girls in the school, led by the aggressively cheerful Hilary Faye (Mandy Moore). But things take an unexpected turn when Mary's boyfriend, Dean (Chad Faust), tells her he may be gay. Mary hits her head and has a vision, in which Jesus tells her how to help "cure" Dean of his unnatural urges. Mary does everything in her power to sway Dean, but when his parents find out about his "problem," they send him away just before the school year starts, leaving Mary alone, confused, and, she soon finds out, pregnant. Mary's new situation causes her to question everything, including her friendship with the judgmental Hilary Faye and her faith. Her mother (Mary-Louise Parker) is too preoccupied with her flirtatious relationship with the school's married principal, Pastor Skip (Martin Donovan), to notice Mary's problem. Pastor Skip's dreamboat skateboarder son, Patrick (Patrick Fugit), has returned from missionary work and is attracted to Mary, but she already has too much to deal with. Just when she thinks her situation is hopeless, she finds a pair of unlikely allies in Hilary Faye's cynical wheelchair-bound brother, Roland (Macaulay Culkin), and wild, muscle car-driving provocateur Cassandra Edelstein (Eva Amurri), the school's only Jewish student. MGM/UA Home Video. DVD. $26.98.

School of Rock. (2003). Color. 108 mins. CC PG13. (Dubbed: French). Video Released 2003. Directed by Richard Linklater. Featuring Jack Black, Mike White, Joan Cusack. The world's least-employable heavy metal guitarist is entrusted with the minds of upstate New York's best and brightest in this fish-out-of-water comedy. Jack Black plays Dewey Finn, axe-bearer for a fitfully successful bar band determined to win a regional battle-of-the-bands competition. There's only one thing standing in their way: the self-indulgent solos and crowd-diving antics of their "embarrassing" lead guitarist. When his band votes him out in favor of a would-be rock god, Dewey has to make the rent somehow, and after intercepting a call for his substitute-teacher roomie Ned (Mike White), the pot-bellied slacker finds himself in front of a class of elite elementary school students. At a loss for a lesson plan, Dewey takes offense at the pre-teen prodigies' staid musical regimen and makes it his goal to preach them the gospel of the Who, Led Zeppelin, and AC/DC — with the ulterior motive of getting them to compete against his former band for a cash prize. But no matter how willing his pupils, Dewey runs up against the consternation of the school's stern headmistress Principal Mullins (Joan Cusack), the battle-of-the-bands' promoter (Frank Whaley), and not least, his identity-deprived roomie Ned. Paramount Pictures. DVD. $29.99; VHS.

Scooby-Doo 2: Monsters Unleashed. (2004). Color. 93 mins. CC PG. (Dubbed: Spanish, French). Theatrical Release. Video Released 2004. Directed by Raja Gosnell. Featuring Freddie Prinze, Jr., Sarah Michelle Gellar, Ruben Studdard, Seth Green, Matthew Lillard. The reunited Mystery Inc. team — Fred (Freddie Prinze Jr.), Daphne (Sarah Michelle Gellar), Velma (Linda Cardellini), Shaggy (Matthew Lillard), and Scooby-Doo (voice of Neil Fanning) — return to their hometown of Coolsville as heroes when a local criminology museum offers an exhibition of the many ghostly disguises used by villains they've subdued over the years. However, their warm welcome is not long-lived; mean-spirited television reporter Heather Jasper-Howe (Alicia Silverstone) has aired a series of stories calling the team's intelligence and bravery into question, and even worse, a number of the weird creature costumes on display in the museum are coming to life and wrecking havoc on the people of Coolsville. Some of the clues seem to point to Old Man Wickles (Peter Boyle), whose attempts to pose as the Black Knight Ghost were foiled by the Mystery Machinists in the past, but is he looking for revenge or just a red herring? And what is Velma supposed to do about Patrick Wisely (Seth Green), a curator at the museum who's warm for her helmet-haired form?. Warner Home Video, Inc. DVD. $27.95; VHS. $22.99; VHS. $22.99.

Secret Lives: Hidden Children & Their Rescuers During WWII. (2002). Color. 90 mins. NR. Video Released 2002. Directed by Aviva Shesin. As an infant at the dawn of World War II, director Aviva Slesin was handed off by her Jewish parents to a Lithuanian family, for safekeeping from the Nazis. Now, Slesin seeks out the stories of other "adoptees" and their families in the documentary Secret Lives: Hidden Children & Their Rescuers During WWII. Over the course of interviews with over five dozen children who escaped the Holocaust, Slesin learns of the struggles, hardships, and love experienced by these displaced sons and daughters, and about their faint memories of their birth parents. By the same token, Slesin finds out the rationales of the families who took them in — whether due to goodwill, loyalty, or, in some cases, economic gain — and even examines the resentment felt by some of them toward their "new" brothers and sisters. WinStar Home Video. DVD. $24.98;. $19.98.

The Secret Lives of Dentists. (2002). Color. 101 mins. CC R. Made-for-Video. Video Released 2002. Directed by Alan Rudolph. Featuring Denis Leary, Robin Tunney, Hope Davis, Campbell Scott. A gentle man suddenly finds himself at a loss for what to do when he suspects his wife has been unfaithful in this comedy drama from director Alan Rudolph. David and Dana Hurst (Campbell Scott and Hope Davis) are a married couple with three children who also happen to be dentists who share an office. David is a quiet and reserved sort, while Dana has been quietly but obviously unhappy with things recently. Backstage at a community theater production, David sees Dana in the arms of another man and is immediately certain she's having an affair, a suspicion only deepened by her continued dark mood, long periods of silence, and frequent trips out of the house. Slater (Denis Leary) is a disgruntled patient of the Hursts who has gone public with his unhappiness over their work; as David tries to work out Slater's differences, Slater becomes a frequent (and not always welcome) visitor in David's home. As he observes the obvious tension in David and Dana's relationship, Slater begins offering his own gruff brand of advice to David — including acting cooler and informing Dana "I could kill you" at the dinner table. Sony Pictures Home Entertainment. DVD. $26.96; VHS.

Seduction: The Cruel Woman. 84 mins. Video Released 2003. Mechthilde Grossmann, Udo Kier, Carola Regneir, Sheila McLaughlin. Directed by Monika Treut. Wanda is a dominatrix who runs a "gallery" on the Hamburg waterfront, where audiences pay for the privilege of watching her humiliate her slaves. After Wanda leaves her German lesbian lover (a shoe fetishist) for a beautiful American "trainee"—and then rejects a male performer who has broken the rules of the master/slave relationship by falling in love with her—she must confront her own desires and fears. More than just the ritual and performance of S&M, this ground-breaking film explores the psychological aspects of power and submission, and the shifting roles in S&M relationships. This edition also includes the following supplements: Interview with the director; Director Profile; photo gallery; trailer gallery. First Run Features. DVD. (UPC: 720229910774) $24.95.

Shall We Dance? (2004). Color. 106 mins. CC PG13. (Dubbed: French). Video Released 2004. Directed by Peter Chelsom. Featuring Richard Gere, Jennifer Lopez, Nick Cannon, Ja Rule, Susan Sarandon. Shall We Dance? revolves around John Clark (Richard Gere), a workaholic Chicago lawyer who, despite a respectable paycheck and loving family, is unable to shake the feeling that something in his life is missing. On a whim, John disrupts his normal evening commute to attend a dance class in hopes of meeting Paulina (Jennifer Lopez), a beautiful dance teacher he would occasionally spot gazing out of the studio windows. Though Paulina quickly lays to rest any preconceived romantic notions John may have had about her, she nonetheless forms a bond with him that goes beyond those normally held by a teacher and student. Invigorated with his new hobby, John focuses his newfound enthusiasm into training for an upcoming dance competition; however, he chooses not to let his wife (Susan Sarandon) in on his plans. Unaware that dance may be, in fact, saving her marriage, John's wife becomes suspicious of all the time he spends away from home and hires a private investigator to find out whether or not her husband is having an affair. Ultimately, John is forced to examine how his old dreams fit in to his new life. Buena Vista Home Video. DVD. $29.99.
